By attempting an overview of themes and developments of artistic research at the different Universities this workshop will enquire into the present situation of theory and practice of artistic research in Switzerland.

On the one hand themes and objectives will be considered in retrospect asking what has been achieved (particularly with regard to projects that have led to grants, publications, exhibitions etc.).

On the other hand the event will attempt a view of emerging (thematic or methodological) fields and where researchers see future interests and needs.

By obtaining an overview of the research profiles and concrete topics of the different Universities we hope to support both a fruitful exchange and to advance the debate about the contribution artistic research is making to various (theoretical, artistic, social, practical) fields and how and which topics are central in the public context.

(This last issue will be followed up in the last workshop this year, on December 3rd in Luzern, dealing with forms and formats of the presentation of artistic research).

Program:

13.30 – 14.00 Artistic Research in Switzerland: Where are we, where will we go? Introduction by Flavia Caviezel & Priska Gisler

From the Inside__

Themes in Swiss Artistic Research

__Presentations and Debate__

SARN aims at establishing a continued exchange within the Swiss community of artistic research. The SARN workshops gather artist researchers, professors and students for a dialogue about their projects, sharing their research experiences and imagining possible future collaborations.
